Intersections Between Work and Family: When a Playpen Can be Office Furniture.

Authors: Mills, Melanie Bailey

Document Type: Article
Subject Terms:
*FEMINISM
GENDER inequality
WOMEN college teachers
WORKING mothers
COLLEGE teachers
ACADEMIC tenure
MOTHERHOOD
SEX discrimination in higher education
COLLEGE teachers -- Social conditions
CHILDREN of working mothers
MATERNITY benefits
COLLEGE teachers -- Tenure
COLLEGE teachers -- Workload
FEMINISTS

Abstract: The article discusses some of the challenges faced by women who attempt to bear and raise children while pursuing academic careers. Examples are drawn from the author's personal experience as a professor and mother. Conflicts between professional academic duties and the demands of pregnancy and motherhood are analyzed from feminist, sociological and philosophical perspectives, and questions involving gender inequalities are addressed. It is said that men are often thought to become more responsible at work when children are born to them, while the reverse is expected of women.

Author
1Eastern Illinois University

Affiliations:

ISSN: 0749-1409

Accession
Number: 34641648

Database: Communication & Mass Media Complete

- Send us your Feedback
- What Am I Searching?